

The Culture of Business, Finance and the Economy

Second Exam Questions

You must answer A TOTAL OF FOUR questions. All questions are worth 2,5 points. You can answer any/all questions in English, Spanish, or any reasonably intelligible form of Spanglish. All questions can be answered to perfection with the arguments fully contained in the class they each obviously pertain to and those arguments only. Be as detailed, precise and specific as possible in your answers whilst thinking generously about the relationship between each question and the arguments of the class it pertains to. DO NOT ITEMISE your answers; always answer in a clean narrative format.

Answer AT LEAST THREE of these questions:

1. Either (Discuss the emergence, characteristics and internal logics of the entrepreneurial self as “a disposition towards the self” and characterise it as thoroughly as possible and with as many class examples as possible) OR (Discussing its emergence and characteristics, characterise the “self as business” and show its workings in TCBFE as thoroughly as possible and with as many class examples as possible).
2. Retrace the very beginnings of the journey from makerspaces to venture capitalism as thoroughly as possible and with as many class examples as possible.
3. Describe the workings of “hype, pitching and leveraging” as thoroughly as possible and with as many examples from class as possible. ALSO describe the main features of venture capitalism as thoroughly as possible and with as many class examples as possible.
4. Retrace the invention, spread and uses of corporate culture as thoroughly as possible and with as many examples from class as possible.
5. Retrace the consolidation of CSR as a business concern in between the lines, show the reasons TCBFE colonised it in a specific way and as thoroughly as possible and with as many class examples as possible and show the many ways in which, as Carly Fiorina said, “we as companies still have the ability to shape that movement and to take control of that movement before it takes control of us”.
6. Define and characterise the emergence and consolidation of technocracy and with as many class examples as possible show how it works and how it builds on many other discussions we have had over this semester.

Answer NO MORE THAN ONE of these questions:

7. Discuss: "The abstractions consultants produce and deal with perpetuate the need for their involvement and deflect responsibility".
8. Focusing on recruitment processes, required skills and historical evidence of their results, discuss: how come financial analysts exist and what are they really there for?
9. Describe financial analysts' work to "make things make sense".
